Summary

The European Integration Index measures how far the Union itself is integrated, on a scale where 100 would be a fully integrated Union. Data as of 5 November 2026, identical to the EU Integration Tracker website.

Key findings

- Europe is still under construction. With 11 of 29 reforms fully in place, the Union stands at 57.5 out of 100. The score has not changed since 2021, when common borrowing, the European Defence Fund and the European Public Prosecutor's Office started.
- Treaties drove the biggest steps. The largest jumps came with the Lisbon Treaty in 2009 (+15.8 points) and the Maastricht Treaty in 1993 (+10.8 points).
- Citizens and rights is the most integrated pillar (75 out of 100); budget and fiscal capacity is the least integrated (40). The EU cannot set its own taxes and borrows only on a temporary basis.
- Unanimity is the main brake. It still applies to foreign and defence policy, taxation, the long-term budget, own resources, enlargement and every change to the Treaties.
- Seven reforms are missing altogether: capital markets union, taxes decided at EU level, permanent budget for economic stabilisation, right of initiative for Parliament, treaty changes without unanimity, a single president of the European Council and the Commission, common defence.

A project under construction

The index recalculated for every year since 1950 with today's method. Each step is a treaty or a reform that brought the Union closer to full integration; the dashed line is the end point, which has not been reached.

What is still missing

The 18 reforms that are missing or only partly in place, starting with those not in place at all.

SINGLE MARKET AND CURRENCY · MISSING

Capital markets union

Capital markets remain largely national. The Savings and Investments Union is a set of proposals still under way.

BUDGET AND FISCAL CAPACITY · MISSING

Taxes decided at EU level

The EU cannot set its own taxes. New own resources need unanimity in the Council and approval in every member state (Article 311 TFEU).

BUDGET AND FISCAL CAPACITY · MISSING

Permanent budget for economic stabilisation

There is no permanent EU fiscal capacity to absorb economic shocks.

DECISION-MAKING · MISSING

Right of initiative for Parliament

Only the Commission can propose laws. Parliament can ask it to act but cannot table proposals itself.

DECISION-MAKING · MISSING

Treaty changes without unanimity

Every treaty change must be ratified by all member states (Article 48 TEU).

EXECUTIVE AND REPRESENTATION · MISSING

A single President of the European Council and the Commission

The two posts are separate and filled by different procedures (Articles 15 and 17 TEU).

FOREIGN POLICY, SECURITY AND DEFENCE · MISSING

Common defence

The Treaty foresees a common defence, but it needs a unanimous decision of the European Council and approval in every member state (Article 42(2) TEU). There is no EU army.

SINGLE MARKET AND CURRENCY · PARTLY IN PLACE

Single currency

The euro has existed since 1999, but only 21 of the 27 member states use it.

SINGLE MARKET AND CURRENCY · PARTLY IN PLACE

Banking union

Single supervision by the ECB (2014) and single resolution (2016) are in place. The European deposit insurance scheme is still only a proposal.

BUDGET AND FISCAL CAPACITY · PARTLY IN PLACE

Own resources

Since 1971 the budget has been financed by own resources, but the largest of them is a contribution based on each country's national income.

BUDGET AND FISCAL CAPACITY · PARTLY IN PLACE

Common borrowing

The EU borrowed on the markets for NextGenerationEU from 2021 and for the SAFE defence loans from 2025, but only on a temporary basis.

DECISION-MAKING · PARTLY IN PLACE

Majority voting instead of unanimity

Qualified majority voting has spread since the Single European Act, but unanimity remains for foreign and defence policy, taxation, the long-term budget, own resources and enlargement.

EXECUTIVE AND REPRESENTATION · PARTLY IN PLACE

Commission President linked to European elections

Since 2009 the European Council proposes the candidate taking into account the European elections, and Parliament elects him or her (Article 17 TEU). Leaders keep the choice.

FOREIGN POLICY, SECURITY AND DEFENCE · PARTLY IN PLACE

Common foreign and security policy

Created by the Maastricht Treaty in 1993. Decisions still need unanimity.

FOREIGN POLICY, SECURITY AND DEFENCE · PARTLY IN PLACE

Permanent structured cooperation (PESCO)

Set up in December 2017. 26 member states take part; Malta does not.

FOREIGN POLICY, SECURITY AND DEFENCE · PARTLY IN PLACE

EU funding for defence

The European Defence Fund (2021) and the SAFE loans of up to EUR 150 billion (2025) finance defence industry projects, but defence spending stays national.

CITIZENS AND RIGHTS · PARTLY IN PLACE

Schengen area in EU law

Brought into EU law by the Amsterdam Treaty in 1999. 25 of the 27 member states are full members; Cyprus is not yet and Ireland has an opt-out.

CITIZENS AND RIGHTS · PARTLY IN PLACE

European Public Prosecutor's Office

Operational since 2021. 25 of the 27 member states take part; Denmark and Ireland do not.

All reforms tracked

Each reform scores 1 when in place for the EU as a whole, 0.5 when partly in place and 0 when missing. Each pillar is the average of its reforms; the index is the average of the six pillars.

Methodology

The European Integration Index is our own score. Every status is checked against the Treaties and official EU sources, listed in the sources section.

Rules and limits

- The index covers 29 reforms in six pillars of equal weight. The list and the weights are our choice and are published so that anyone can check or contest them.
- Full integration is used here as a reference point, not as a goal that the Union should reach. The index does not judge whether a reform is desirable.
- A reform counts as partly in place when it is limited in scope, temporary, or applies only to some member states.
- The historical curve applies today's method to past years, so it shows the order and size of the steps rather than how contemporaries saw them.
- Statuses are checked against the Treaties and official EU sources.
- This edition replaces the release of October 2026; no tracked reform has changed status since then, so the scores are unchanged.

Release calendar

- Quarterly editions: February, May, August and November, aligned with the Accession Progress Index. Edition 2 is due in February 2027.
- Extra updates when a reform tracked by the index is adopted or enters into force.

The current debate

22 NOV 2023 · EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT

Proposals to amend the Treaties

Parliament proposed more qualified majority voting, a right of legislative initiative and a defence union, and asked for a Convention under Article 48 TEU. The European Council has not called one.

6 OCT 2026 · EUROPEAN COMMISSION

Preparing for a wider Union

The Commission's pre-enlargement reviews propose using existing treaty tools, such as passerelle clauses and qualified majority voting in selected areas, rather than treaty change.
